GUADALUPE COUNCIL
KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

INSTITUTED IN CITY OF MEXICO.
ALBUQUERQUE KNIGHT GARGAN RETURNS TO CITY.

T. E. Gargan, manager of the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company, returned yesterday from his trip to Mexico, and from him The Citizen learns that the institution of the new Guadalupe Council, Knights of Columbus, in the City of Mexico, was attended by about fifty of the leading Knights of the United States, nearly every state having a representative there. The degree work was exemplified by the Denver council assisted by the El Paso and San Antonio, Tex., councils. It was put on on two different nights in order to give the new officers experience in the work.

The visiting Knights were shown every courtesy, a program of events lasting three days, having been arranged for their entertainment.

On Washington's birthday the visiting Knights attended the famous Orin circus in a body, occupying the president's box.

The following day, President Diaz gave a dinner, at which the entire party were received at the White House of Mexico.

The banquet given by the candidates at the American club, in honor of Supreme Knight Hearne, was a very elegant affair. The national colors of both Mexico and the United States were in evidence and the tables artistically arranged with flowers, which were a marvel to the visitors from the north.

Archbishop Alarcon tendered a reception at his home to the party, Saturday afternoon.

Sunday morning, the Knights attended high mass in a body, at San Lorenzo church. Rev. P. C. McGivney of Middleton, Conn., the grand chaplain of the order, delivered the sermon, which was of more than passing interest.

A large number of ladies accompanied the party to Mexico, and were magnificently entertained by the society leaders of the national capital. Each afternoon of their stay was devoted to receptions given in their honor in different parts of the city.

The new council is composed of the representative business men of the city, and is distinctly American in its personnel. E. W. Sours, a former Albuquerque boy, now manager for R. G. Dunn & Co., of Mexico, is one of the high officers of the new council.

REV. CARTER BADLY INJURED IN RUNAWAY.

A runaway occurred, Monday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, on Main street, and Rev. G. H. Carter had a narrow escape from being killed, says the Record. The wagon team of R. L. Phillips broke loose and ran from in front of the store of Morrison Bros. and collided with the wagon and team driven by Rev. G. H. Carter in front of the Citizens' National bank. This stopped the Phillips team, and the Carter team got away by breaking off the two front wheels of the wagon. Mr. Carter lost control of the team, and as they dashed north he fell on the single tree and tongue. Opposite the Record office the tongue broke and the aged driver fell under the wheels, with the horses kicking at him. He held his hands to his face, and the wheels passed over his neck, breast and legs. Letting the team go, the spectators ran to the assistance of the driver, and he was carried into the second hand store, north of the Record office, and a physician called. The physician found no broken bones, but Mr. Carter was badly bruised on the face, hands, neck, breast and thighs. He is 67 years of age.

THE MAN WHO PUT THE MONSTER RAILROAD COAL TRUST IN THE HOLE

THE STORY OF HOW LOGAN M. BULLITT, THE RED ROCK FUEL MAN, WHO HAS SET CONGRESS IN FULL CRY AFTER THE PENN. SYLVANIA-BALTIMORE & OHIO RAILROAD COAL OCTOPUS.

LOGAN M. BULLITT.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1.—Through the daring action of one man, who happens to have the courage, a body blow has been struck at the citadel of the greedy railroad trust.

A sweeping investigation is to be made of the trade methods of the spiderweb of railroads that dominate the hard and soft coal fields of the country. Disclosures into a monster plot to restrict trade in the great American commodity—coal, are promised.

The man is Logan B. Bullitt, president of the Red Rock Fuel company, a relatively obscure bituminous mining company, of West Virginia. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, one arm of the trust, refused to allow this little independent concern to do business. The worm turned, and the little concern carried its complaint before the interstate commerce commission.

The body heard the evidence, and in scathing terms denounced the action of the railroad and peremptorily ordered the discrimination stopped.

The report of the commission was sent to every member of congress, and President Roosevelt became interested. Representative Gillespie, of Texas, fathered the resolution to investigate in the house, and "Pitchfork" Ben Tillman has declared his intention of fighting for a clean sweep of the matter in the senate. Next month Judge Dayton, of the United States circuit court of the northern district of West Virginia, will be called upon to enforce the order of the interstate commerce commission.

These plans are resultant from the bold action of Bullitt, who, as he said in a petition to congress, urged an investigation "in the interest of all independent coal shippers who have no railroad influence and the public generally, who have felt the oppressive force of railroad abuses."

The congressional investigation will be into the Pennsylvania railroad system, which is declared to be the skeleton of the coal-railroad trust.

The same classic money interests that control the Pennsylvania are associated in the control and domination largely through the Pennsylvania management, of New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, Philadelphia & Reading, Jersey Central, Lackawanna, Erie, and numerous smaller lines, all forming a perfect network through the soft and hard coal fields of the east, south and middle west.

Though the motive for the investigation is to show that the combination is in restraint of trade and a violation of the anti-trust law, its ramifications are expected to show a system of arbitrarily fixing coal prices, freight rate discrimination of various kinds and

DEAD BODY OF SHEEP HERDER FOUND

AND THREE MEN ARRESTED ON SUSPICION—A LINCOLN COUNTY TRAGEDY.

A correspondent, writing to the Santa Fe New Mexican, from White Oaks, tells of the finding of the dead body of a sheep herder who disappeared some time ago, and foul play is suspected, three men having been arrested on suspicion. The article says:

Last winter during the heavy snows a man by the name of Marcelino Canas was herding goats in the foothills of the Jicarilla mountains about ten miles east of White Oaks. Cas Otero and Salomon Gonzales, stepsons of Juan Chavez y Trujillo, a prominent sheep man of the county, living a Raventin, was also herding goats near by.

Disappeared.

During the cold weather, Canas was very mysteriously disappeared, and the two young men were strongly suspected of making away with him, as the missing man was known to have about $600 concealed in a belt on his person.

No arrests were made however, at the time, but as soon as the snow disappeared a diligent search was made for the body by Sheriff Owen and others, without results. An amulet, or cross, which Gonzales wore, was found in the possession of a woman who was living with him in camp, also a buckle and a small portion of a belt were found near where Otero and Gonzales had their camps, which were supposed to be a part of the garments worn by the victim at the time of his disappearance.

Body Found.

The search was, however, never entirely given up by friends, and on Saturday the body of Canas was found in an abandoned hole in the vicinity of the camp where an attempt had been made to conceal it by throwing in rocks. Upon this news being reported to him, the sheriff at once came from Lincoln and arrested, together with the two men mentioned, a third man, who was supposed to be an accessory, and took them to the county jail. A coroner's jury was empaneled by Justice of the Peace Norton, of Jicarilla precinct, but what their verdict was has not yet been learned.

MONUMENT FOR ROUGH
RIDER "BUCKY" O'NEILL.

Frank Teich, a sculptor of world-wide travel and work, is a recent arrival in Prescott from Austin, Tex., to confer with the Captain William O'Neill Rough Rider Monument Association in regard to the erection of the Rough Rider monument, says the Prescott Courier.

Mr. Teich has but recently returned from a professional trip to Paris and Rome. He has designed and made many monuments throughout the United States. The statue of the late Senator Coke at Waco, Tex., is his handiwork. Mr. Teich passed through Arizona twenty-five years ago, and is much interested in the development of our territory.

She Might Have Died from Paralysis
Caused by Scarlet Fever, but Was Cured by Sloan's Liniment.

Biloxi, Miss.

Dr. Earl S. Sloan:

Dear Sir—Four years ago my little girl was dangerously ill with Scarlet Fever. She seemed to be dying, her body was drawn back and she suffered dreadfully. The doctor tried remedy after remedy, but failed to relieve the pain, until as a last resort he used Sloan's Liniment. My child began to experience relief immediately, and was well today. I always keep Sloan's Liniment in the house now, and use it for every emergency.

Gratefully yours,
P. A. ST. AMANAT.

"OLD FIGGERS" IS DOWN AND OUT

Who will do the "figgering" for the republican party in 1908?

Nobody knows yet, because General Charles Grosvenor, familiarly and affectionately known as "Old Figgers," is down and out. He is the man who during the three last presidential campaigns made official forecasts, in numerals, for his party. And his figgers were remarkably close to the result.
